This presents a low toxicity rate that is deemed safe, under which a low percentage of stopping is preferred, or equivalently, a high probability of concluding that the treatment is safe (i.e., statistical power).